

GARDEN RESOURCE PROGRAM

Picture a city with places to grow food in every neighborhood, making fresh and healthy food accessible to families, and helping residents become the driving force of community and economic development. The Garden Resource Program (GRP), coordinated by Keep Growing Detroit (KGD), helps bring this picture to life every day by providing resources to more than 1,400 urban gardens and farms. Resources include seeds and Detroit grown transplants, basic and advanced educational opportunities, and technical assistance to establish and maintain sites. Most important of all, gardens of all shapes and sizes are connected through the GRP to a growing network of gardeners, farmers, food entrepreneurs, and advocates working to promote a thriving local food system.

THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT THE GRP

THERE'S MORE TO THE GRP THAN SEEDS & PLANTS!

EDUCATION

KGD offers classes on everything from basic gardening to cooking, food preservation, pest management and beekeeping. Drop in for a class or consider taking one of our comprehensive training programs.

GARDEN SUPPORT & RESOURCES

Whether you are new to gardening or an experienced farmer, KGD offers technical assistance with whatever you need, from choosing a site and taking a soil test to helping with a farm business plan. We also offer resources like compost, raised bed materials and access to tools.

COMMUNITY! WE ALL GIVE A LITTLE AND WE GROW A LOT.

The GRP is possible because of the participants and organizations that contribute their time, skills, and leadership. We all put a little sweat equity in at our volunteer events and we enjoy each others company at potlucks and community events!
